Culturally Responsive Teaching and Learning

At Maple, we value culturally responsive and relevant education. Culturally responsive teaching is a student- and family-centered approach in which a student's well-being and cultural identity is valued and celebrated. In general, we want our students to explore their own culture, investigate their cultural roots, and learn about and appreciate other students' and neighbors' cultures as well.

Culturally Responsive Teaching and Learning

How does culturally responsive education look at Maple?

Culturally Responsive Teaching and Learning

- Multicultural libraries and curriculums
- Daily lessons created and delivered with a cultural lens
- Multicultural heroes, mentors, and role models
- Consistent emphasis on multiculturalism year-round
- Home languages valued and CELEBRATED!
- Large-scale cultural events!

Parent Involvement

Parent involvement in your child's education can mean many things (home and parent involvement at school)

What does parent involvement means to you?

- Parents are their children's first teachers
  - Learning happens at home which helps the child develop academically and socially
- Parents are their child's strongest advocate
  - Becoming a parent advocate begins with wanting the best for your child.

Parent Involvement at Home

- Provide a space in the house where the child can study and complete homework
- Read to/with you child
- Assist your child's learning by asking questions about their school day
- Monitor homework

Ways to know what is going on at school & in the Class

- Progress reports
- Parent portal and district website
- Principal or teacher newsletters and flyers
- Signs and banners
- Phone Calls and emails

Events and Committees

- Back to School Night
- Parent-Teacher Conferences
- School Open House
- School events and parent trainings
- Personal appointments with teachers and administrators
- Parents groups such as PTA, SSC, ELAC and other (check with your school)
